Cartus Wins EMMA Award for Corporate Social Responsibility from the Forum for Expatriate Management

Runner-up for Vendor Partnership with client Nike and Thought Leadership for benchmark research

DANBURY, Conn., (May 8, 2017) – Cartus Corporation, a leading provider of global relocation services earned an EMMA award for Corporate Social Responsibility at the Forum for Expatriate Management's gala ceremonies on May 4 in Denver, Colorado. Cartus was also runner-up in two additional categories: Vendor Partnership, with client Nike, and Thought Leadership, for the company's multi-year benchmark research, the Policy & Practices survey. The EMMAs recognize outstanding achievements within the relocation industry in a number of different categories.

Speaking of the EMMA for Corporate Social Responsibility Kevin Kelleher, Cartus' president and CEO, attributed the win to the company's commitment to a wide range of initiatives supporting the health and well-being of its employees, as well as the engagement of the entire global employee base in a host of charitable and community focused efforts.

"Our commitment to our employees, as well as to our clients through flexible relocation solutions, user-friendly technology, and informed guidance on industry trends and issues, is something we are extremely proud of, and it's our dedication in these areas that really exemplifies the "Have Done, Will Do" attitude of our organization," Kelleher said. "We are truly honored to be recognized by the Forum for Expatriate Management for our achievements in all of these areas."
