Cartus Awards College Scholarships to Three Students

DANBURY, Conn., (August 1, 2017) – For many, scholarships are far more than a bonus – they’re crucial for students to bridge the gap between the rising costs of tuition and what their families can afford. To help, Cartus Corporation, a leading provider of global relocation services, presents three scholarships to children of its employees, annually. The Danbury-based company with operations around the world sees its scholarship awards as an investment in future leadership and is one of the many ways it supports its valued employees.

A Cartus judging panel reviewed 16 applications, considering recommendation letters, student essays, transcripts and examples of leadership and community service activities. Amy Meichner, Cartus Vice President of Human Resources, noted that the committee was impressed by the varied strengths, talents and school- and community-based contributions of each student, which made choosing just three a difficult task.

Emma Johnson of Sandy Hook, Connecticut, was awarded $2,000, which she will apply to tuition at Barrett Honors College at Arizona State University where she plans to study biochemistry. Her hope after graduation is to conduct research and create new medicines that will benefit people worldwide.

Two more scholarships in the amount of $1,000 each were awarded to Akil Purdy of Memphis, Tennessee, and Christopher Joyce of Bethel, Connecticut. Purdy, who will attend the University of Memphis this Fall, hopes to become a defense attorney. Joyce, headed for High Point University in High Point, North Carolina, also hopes to become an attorney. Both cited a desire to help those in their communities as motivating factors in their career choices.

“Providing our employees with support for their childrens’ education is gratifying, in and of itself,” said Meichner, “but we’re also happy to be supporting the futures of three students who clearly want to benefit their communities through their passions and service. The winners have exemplified inquisitiveness, leadership and dedication to their studies; we’re confident that they’ll all do great things, in college and beyond.”

This is the eighth year that Cartus has offered its Scholarship Awards. To date, the company has distributed $33,000 to college-bound children of Cartus employees.
